Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by ABBOTT (U.S. Patent Application Publication 2003/0033344).

As to claim 1, ABBOTT teaches a method for operating a virtual machine to provide continuation passing in a wireless device (handheld device) (pg. 3, paragraph 0049), wherein the virtual machine comprises a stack memory (stack area / stacks) (pg. 5, paragraph 0062), and the method comprises: encountering a context-creating trigger (save routine / store routine) (pg. 9, paragraph 0125; pg. 8, paragraph 0110; pg. 9, paragraph 0128 – pg. 10, paragraph 0131); constructing a continuation block (linked list) in response to the trigger, wherein the continuation block comprises a stack fragment derived from the stack memory (via unwinding and encoding of the stack before saving) (pg. 8, paragraphs 0105 – paragraph 0111); encountering an evaluation instruction (restoring instruction); and storing the stack fragment from the continuation block (linked list) on the stack memory (stack area / stack) in response to the evaluation instruction (pg. 10, paragraph 0134 and 0136).

As to claims 2 and 3, ABBOTT teaches the context-creating trigger comprises a selected program instruction or a program marker associated with a program instruction (via a save instruction / store instruction) (pg. 9, paragraph 0125; pg. 8, paragraph 0110; pg. 9, paragraph 0128 – pg. 10, paragraph 0131).

As to claim 4, ABBOTT teaches the continuation block (linked list) and restoring the continuation block into a stack area by reloading the block (see page 9, paragraph 0125). Therefore, it would be inherent to the teachings of ABBOTT that in order to reload the block it would have to be stored at an additional memory area and loaded again from that memory area.

As to claim 5, ABBOTT teaches jumping to selected program code to evaluate the continuation (via using the store and restore instruction to analyze the virtual machine for system errors / debugging / diagnostics) (pg. 10, paragraph 0133-0136; pg. 11, paragraph 0140).

As to claims 6-10, reference is made to a virtual machine that corresponds to the method of claims 1-5 and is therefore met by the rejection to claims 1-5 above.

As to claims 12-14, reference is made to a virtual machine that correspond to the method of claims 1, 4 and 5 and is therefore met by the rejection of claims 1, 4, and 5 above.

As to claim 15, reference is made to a wireless device that corresponds to the method of claim 1 and is therefore met by the rejection of claim 1 above. In addition see pg. 3, paragraph 0049, wherein a computer system can also be a handheld device.
